Cruzados was not a starter. In fact, he narrowly escaped from an accident which would have ruined him for life. A horse drawing a delivery wagon inside the grounds ran away and galloped wildly down the lanes between the barns.

loped wildly down the lanes between the barns.

He turned in the lane in front of the Baldwin row just as a number of the horses were being led around to cool off. Cruzades was in the string. Spiers jecked the son of Emperor of Norfolk out of the way by main force, just as the wagon wheel nosed his hind quarters. Two two-year-olds in the path of the wagon were turned loose in the excitement and made a rush for the plunging run way. The colts ran away around the track inclosure, but were captured unhurt. The runaway horse and wagon ran into the fence and were stopped.

Much work was spent on the track in the morning. It dried out fast and was harrowed and reharrowed and finally dragged. At 1 o'clock it looked as though the course would be fast and at least 2 seconds faster to the mile than had been expected.

New Yorkers Disappointed for They Were Confident of Again Beating Hanlon's Men.

> The Giants did not play Ned Hanlon's Brooklyn team this afternoon on the Polo Grounds. The heavy rain of the morning made the field so soggy that playing was impossible and the game but folks, just let the dead rest. No use in recalling unpleasant subjects. Wel the way O'Hagan played was enough to make one forget the brightest star that ever scampered over a diamond. That fellow showed in great form, and if he but continues his great playing he need not fear the Giants' management draw ing out another slip of paper entitled 'Release" for him.

All the best and vantage points from which to the fifteenth running of the Ameriberby, were filled and taken early, than one hour before the first players in this tournament. On Thursplayers in this tournament. On Thursrace.

Ane wind was cool and chilly, and slightly against the crowd, who shivered and waited for the race.

Heno was given the post of honor with No. 1. There is a possible slightly advantage in this position at the start at the half-mile pole, although the track next to the rail was slow in drying out and was still sticky at post time. Burns & Waterhouse's Corrigan was next with No. 2, and J. E. Madden's Pentecost alongside him with No. 3. Next came H. M. Ziegler's Hermis with No. 4, and Featherstone's Arsenal, No. 5.

It was a peculiar conincidence that all the Eastern colts should have the farvored positions nearest the rail. John were as keen as on an August day after a long siege of dry weather, and to day the heavy rains of the night which had not ceased when the players resumed this morning, caused the balls the semi-finalists.

The first match to be decided in the semi-finals for the Philadelphian Cup was between C. D. Dixon and L. H. Conklin, the latter winning by 3 up and 1 to play. The match was particularly Nos. 9 and 10 as named. Prowl, the choice of the pikers, and practically the outsider in the betting, had No. 11.

George C. Bennett's 'Aladdin had the extreme outside. This was a bad position for Coburn with his notorious habit cutting across his field for an offense of which he was fined $500 in the first race at Harlem yesterday. Unless some one of the starters acted badly at the post, necessitating the changing of positions, the field were to be lined up ust as the programme indicated.

All Starters Colts.

One particular feature of this year's derby is the absence of a filly or gelding. Last year's winner, Robert Waddell, is a gelding and Harris and Sullivan's filly. Sadle S., was also a starter. This is probably the first derby field in years in which all were colts.
